CABOURG, THE ROMANTICS' BEACH

An emblematic establishment in the seaside resort of Cabourg, Le Grand Hôtel has kept its timeless charm and is one of the rare prestigious locations on the Normandy coast – benefiting from direct beach access. From the terrace bar La Promenade, guests face the sea and can admire the hotel's majestic façade illuminated by the last rays of sunlight, all while sipping a divine cocktail on the esplanade Marcel Proust renamed "The Meridian of Love."

AN ORIGINAL AND MYTHICAL LOCATION

Constructed in 1907, Le Grand Hôtel is a unique marriage of Italian Renaissance architecture and Belle Époque décor. The hushed, romantic atmosphere can be felt in every corner and crevice. The splendor of the lobby – with its glittering chandeliers, large bay windows and lofty ceiling – add to the majesty of this building and invite travelers to stop and stay awhile. A veritable ode to poetry, uniquely decorated guest rooms offer magnificent southward views of the architecture of Cabourg, and, to the north, of the immensity of the horizon.

LITERARY INSPIRATION

«Having learned that there was, in Cabourg, the most comfortable hotel on the entire coast, there I went...».

Le Grand Hôtel Cabourg has become legendary thanks to Marcel Proust, who depicted it in his writing under the name Grand Hôtel de Balbec. Literature lovers can have the pleasure of staying in the actual room that Proust occupied while on holiday at Cabourg and where he partly penned his famous novel, In Search of Lost Time.
